What's happening in Syria?

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The 13-year civil war in Syria has roared back into prominence with a surprise rebel offensive that captured Aleppo, one of Syria's largest cities and an ancient hub of Middle East culture and commerce. The push is the rebels' strongest in years in a war whose destabilizing effects have rippled far beyond the country's borders.

What is HTS' message to the Syrian people?

He added that "our message to the Syrian people is this: We want them to succeed and we're prepared to help them do so." HTS, once an affiliate of al-Qaida, has been designated as a foreign terrorist organization by the U.S. State Department since 2018.

Does Syria have chemical weapons?

Syria entered the Chemical Weapons Convention in 2013 under the Assad regime, barring the administration from developing, producing, acquiring, stockpiling, retaining, transferring or using chemical weapons, according to the organization. Syria is also required to disclose its chemical weapons and related facilities to the watchdog group.

Is a sleeper cell still a threat to Syria & Iraq?

The group's Syria and Iraq branch no longer controls any territory and is not known to be playing a role in the current fighting. But it's still a lethal force operating through sleeper cells in the two countries.

Are Iran's intelligence services fully aware of the Syrian rebels?

Iran's intelligence services were fully aware about the rebels and their information had been shared with the Assad's government, Iranian foreign minister Abbas Araghchi told Iran's state news agency IRNA last night. "If the Syrian army had resisted, even Aleppo would not have fallen," he said.
